Porini and WIS announce partnership to sell and deploy enterprise software

Porini USA, Inc. and Whiz Integrated Systems Software, today announced a partnership between the two firms. The partnership enlists WIS as a reseller of Porini's complete suite of software applications for the apparel and textile markets and further expands Porini's growing base of skilled consultants and implementation specialists in the North American market.

Nello Radice, COO of Porini USA states "We are very happy with the WIS partnership. WIS has built a surpurb reputation for deploying apparel enterprise systems more quickly and effectively than anyone in the market, and they also offer tremendous value and expertise in EDI. Our growth in North America requires additional resources and WIS is a perfect fit on every level."

After evaluating numerous potential partners and systems Steve Lim and Linda Wade, founders and principals of WIS agree. Wade: "Porini offers a more complete solution than anything we have seen in the market. We see a significant demand from our clients for applications and features that extend beyond traditional boundaries and Porini has it all." Lim adds, "We're excited that this partnership enables us to be more responsive to client and market needs."

The Porini suite of systems allows users to manage the details of their business in a more productive and effective manner. The industry specific tools for Textiles, Apparel, Footwear and Home Furnishings provide excellent visibility and enables clients to reduce exceptions that can impact deliveries, operate with less inventory and improve customer service. Porini offers core Enterprise Resource Planning (ERP) applications that support sales, order management, production, import tracking and distribution, as well as their Collection Development System (CDS) to manage product development calendars, product specifications and costing, WMS, Advanced Planning and Forecasting, and Web Supply Chain Management.
